Village code enforcement supervisor charged with lying about criminal record

A 31 year old Center Moriches man has been charged with offering a false instrument for filing in the first degree after lying on his employment application for a position in the office of code enforcement in Mastic Beach Village.

On July 3, 2015 Patrick K. McCall filed an employment application with the incorporated Village of Mastic Beach and was hired as the municipality's Code Enforcement Supervisor.

McCall checked NO next to the question on the application: "Have you ever been convicted of any crime (felony or misdemeanor)?"

A review of the defendant's criminal history revealed McCall, on March 9, 2006, was convicted of grand larceny and was sentenced to probation.

Records show McCall was arrested in 2005 for selling a laptop computer on E-Bay without sending the computer to the prospective buyer but depositing the purchaser's $1,095 dollar check.

McCall pleaded not guilty to offering a false instrument for filing in the first degree is a class "E" felony punishable by up to four years in prison and was released on his own recognizance.
